Clans Cash In On Devotii Counter-Strike Tournament

Closing date looms and places going fast for the the CyberSnipa's Counter-Strike: Source Showdown

London – 17th July 2007 – devotii today confirmed an overwhelming response to its recent launch and is allowing more clans to sign up to the forthcoming CyberSnipa's Counter-Strike: Source Showdown.

Due to a greater than expected interest in devotii, the deadline for contestants to enter the CyberSnipa's Counter-Strike: Source Showdown competition, is now Monday 23rd July, giving more players the opportunity to sign-up.

The tournament, which begins 30th July, will see up to 64 clans, made up of five-man teams, battle it out for £1000 in cash prizes and CyberSnipa gear in Counter-Strike: Source via the new devotii online gaming service, which provides the best environment and tools for gamers to get online and get playing.

For more details, rules and to sign up your clan, go to www.devotii.com/tournaments/showdown.

Marketing Director, Michael Benson, said: "Since launching devotii last month, we've been delighted with the uptake and positive response from the gaming community." He continued, "This tournament is going to be great for us to show people exactly what devotii can do and how it can massively improve the online gaming experience."
