X LEAGUE TV TO COVER ENEMY DOWN'S 128 CLAN ACTIVISION COD4 TOURNAMENT

London – 17th December 2007 – EnemyDown, a member of the TNWA Group, announced today that its sponsored Activision Call of Duty 4 tournament will be featured on X League TV, the UK's premier eSports Channel in the New Year. The £2,500 team tournament which has already doubled in size from 64 to 128 teams (640 players) will now have highlights and the final shown on X League.

Ray Mia, Channel Head at XLEAGUE.TV commented, "XLEAGUE.TV is delighted to be partnering EnemyDown for another exciting online eSports event. The production values in Call of Duty 4 are phenomenal and this is set to produce some excellent quality competitive eSports television."

Paul Sulyok, CEO of TNWA Group added, "The response we've had from the community for this game has been staggering. With over 350 clans already signed up to the EnemyDown 5v5 ladders there can be no doubt that Call of Duty 4 is one of the most popular online games of 2007 and may well become a mainstay on the competitive gaming scene. With the Activision Call of Duty 4 Tournament being covered by XLEAGUE.TV, you won't miss a single twist in this dramatic and exciting event."

Clans can still signup for the Activision Call of Duty 4 £2,500 tournament, as well as other leagues at www.enemydown.eu. All matches will be secured by XAC, TNWA Group's X-ray Gaming anti cheat system (www.xraygaming.com).
